Volkswagen Group of America restructured its design guidelines for a more flexible and future forward approach. VWGoA spent over a year evaluating six furniture manufacturers and dealer partners. After mock-ups and pricing exercises, VWGoA selected American Interiors and Knoll for a three year agreement covering locations across the US. Their first project is in the Seattle Washington area and is currently being installed.

The design of the offices and workstations is comprised a single size office and workstation module. The surrounding support areas will consist of community areas for gathering and collaboration, meeting spaces, as well as impromptu team meetings and focus work zones. VWGoA selected Gensler as their design firm for all locations in the US. AI and Knoll are working closely with Gensler to support the design requirements for all VWGoA's locations.

CBIZ, Inc., headquartered in Cleveland, Ohio, came to American Interiors in 2015 to create and implement new design guidelines across their many nationwide locations. Knoll has been a long-time customer of CBIZ which enabled both companies to be mutually beneficial as we negotiated a national discount structure that allows CBIZ to obtain aggressive pricing throughout the country.

In response to better connecting to the brand and new ways of working, American Interiors and CBIZ co-created a robust project initiation package that is presented to each CBIZ location at project kick off. The package includes the full menu of American Interiors services, including budget development scenarios for private offices, workstations and ancillary, as well as change communications and interior construction solutions. Together, our teams have completed over 15 CBIZ locations across the country to date with more in design and planning.
